which the Richmond Iron Works of-fered, but the McKay Engineering Company is the lowest bidder. There is some difference in the design, how-ever. The McKay Company's price is $62 each, while the Richmond concern agrees to furnish poles for $67.75 each. The estimate which Consulting En-gineer Trafford made for poles was gineer Trafford made for poles was $75 each, including installation. It is the opinion of the engineer that it will require at least $10 each to install the poles. Representatives of the Norfolk Industrial Commission and of the Norfolk and Southern Railway appeared before the State Military Board at its last meeting and talked "real sassy." In reply the members of the board handed back some talk of the same variety. The Norfolk people wanted some assurance as to the amount of money the State would spend on improving the site. The State wanted the deed and desired assurances as to the building of the spur railroad track to the property. to the property.

Contracts were talked about, but the Military Board did not look with favor on such a proceeding. It did not propose to be bound up to spend any certain amount of mency. To indicate its good faith, the board voted to adopt a certain policy of improvement, such as building a back step, and this is regarded by the State as sufficient to reassure the Norfolk people that Virginia means business. iness.

A sufficient amount of money for the purchase of the camp site was, it is understood, subscribed some time ago, and for months strenuous efforts were made to have the Military Board adopt the Virginia Beach site. This was finally done, but no deed has been delivered.

There is, of course, no especial hurry, as the range could not be used before next summer, but the situation is that the board is ready to proceed with its improvements. It does not wish its improvements. It does not wish to spend money on other people's property.

Upset by Recent Developments.

Returns Should Come In Promptly.

Most of the people who take an interest in politics believe that a fairly large vote will be cast in to-day's congressional primary, especially in Richmond. A week ago the general prediction was that the vote would be light, but the more recent occurrences leave the impression that a large number of voters has become so swell the probable total.

It does not seem likely, that the vote will exceed 6,006. this total, up to the last moment last aight at which the two candidates were able to talk, each was claiming a majority.

The outcome may be said to be clearly in doubt. This is due not so much to a necessary closeness in the vote as to the uncertainty over the developments of the past few days. In campaigns which are well organized, there is usually a way of keeping in touch with those who change their minds or who suddenly become interested in the outcome, but the tack of such an organization in the library District on the part of either candi date makes the matter exceedingly uncertain.

Richmond is Keynote.
Out in the counties a fair vote is expected, without a great deal of effort to get it out. The majority of those who talk over the situation believe that Captain Lamb will come to Richmond with a majority, its size depending, of course, on the viewpoint of the one who is expressing the opinof the one who is expressing the opinien.

This city will probably do the deciding. It is claimed by both sides.

In Richmond the supporters of Captain Lamb and of Judge Wickham will be early at the pells and will be active all day. There will be no lack, it is now thought, of enthusiastic workers. Each has friends who will be on the job from sunrise to sunset, and whose business it will be to see that every voter registers his choice. that every voter registers his choice that every voter registers his choice.

Every Democrat will have ample time. The workingmen will be enabled to vote either before or after their day's labor. The long period of daylight guarantees this.

Returns In Early.

'It should not take long to count the vote. There are but two names on the ticket. The sun will retire from the scene at 7:09, after attending to business since 5:21 this morning. By 7:30 scene at 7:09, after attending to business since 5:21 this morning. By 7:30 many of the judges will be done counting and will be ready to take the returns to Murphy's Hotel, where the city committee will meet.

This body set 9 o'clock as its hour for assembling. It is safe to say that the members will be on hand some time in advance of that hour, since all the returns will be waiting admission by that time. Probably The Times-Dispatch will be able to announce who its elected by that hour.
